Report on Special Lecture:

The Mathematics Department at THLHM successfully conducted a special lecture on Partial Differential Equations on 08/07/2022. The event was graced by the presence of Prof. Surya kanta Mondal, a distinguished mathematician and an authority on the subject.

The lecture commenced at 11:30 AM with a warm welcome address by Dr. Sewli Chatterjee, Head of the Mathematics Department. The guest lecturer then took the stage to deliver an insightful presentation that covered advanced concepts and applications of partial differential equations. The topics discussed included the method of characteristics, Fourier series solutions, and numerical methods for solving PDEs.

The students participated actively, engaging in a thought-provoking question-and-answer session following the lecture. The interaction allowed students to clarify doubts and gain deeper understanding of complex topics.

The event concluded with a vote of thanks by Dr. Sewli Chatterjee, who expressed gratitude to the guest lecturer for sharing their expertise and to the students for their enthusiastic participation. Refreshments were served, and the students had the opportunity to network with the guest lecturer and faculty members.

The special lecture was a resounding success, contributing significantly to the academic enrichment of the Mathematics Department. The department looks forward to organizing similar events in the future to foster a vibrant learning environment.

The special lecture on Partial Differential Equations was a resounding success, leaving a lasting impact on both students and faculty members. Here are the key outcomes and conclusions:

1. The lecture provided students with an in-depth understanding of partial differential equations beyond what is covered in regular coursework.
2. Having Surya kanta mondal, an eminent mathematician, as the guest speaker allowed students to interact with someone who has made significant contributions to the field. Students had the opportunity to ask questions, seek clarifications, and gain insights from real-world examples.
3. The event facilitated networking among students, faculty, and the guest lecturer. Informal discussions during the refreshment break led to potential collaborations and exchange of ideas.
4. The lecture reinforced the importance of mathematics as a fundamental discipline. Students realized its relevance in various scientific and engineering domains, inspiring them to delve deeper into mathematical concepts.

In conclusion, the special lecture served as a catalyst for intellectual growth, fostering a passion for mathematics and encouraging students to explore the fascinating world of partial differential equations. The Mathematics Department aims to organize more such enriching events in the future to nurture academic excellence.

Report of the Programme:-

Patent System for Protection of Scientific Inventions

Speaker: Amit Chandra Das

Assistant Professor, Department of Physics, THLH Mahavidyalay

26/04/2022

In commemoration of World IPR Day, the IPR Cell organized a Special Lecture on Intellectual Property Rights on 26/04/2022 at 1.30 p.m. in collaboration with IQAC. 26 students along with teacher member of the cell were participated in the programme. In the Indian context, in 1856, the Act VI on protection of inventions based on the British Patent Law of 1852 was established. During this period certain privileges were granted to inventors of new manufacturers for a period of 14 year. In 1859, the act was modified as Act XV in which making, selling, using of inventions in India and authorizing others to do so for 14 year from the date of filing the specification. In 1872, the act was re-named as The Patents and Design Protection Act, in 1883 as The Protection of Inventions Act, in 1888 consolidated as The Inventions and Designs Act and in 1911 as The Indian Patents and Designs Act.

Through a patent, the government gives you, the inventor, the right to stop others from making, using or selling your invention from the day the patent is granted to a maximum of 20 years after the day on which you filed your patent application. Patent protection is granted for an invention, a product, or a process, which brings a new technical solution. The invention, which is to be protected by a patent, must be new, useful, functional, and innovative, i.e., solution, for which the patent protection is sought, should not be an obvious one.

As part of the three-stage frame to comply with TRIPS, India passed the Patents (Amendment) Ordinance, 2004. In section 2 of the Patents Act, 1970 definition and interpretation of Budapest Treaty was included. It means the Budapest Treaty on International recognition of the deposition of microorganisms for the purposes of patent procedure done at Budapest on April 28, 1977, as amended and modified from time to time. Section 3 of the Patents Act, 1970 relating to inventions where only methods or processes of manufacture patentable are omitted. The Act gave provisions for patenting a process as well as a product.

In section 7 of the Patents Act, 1970 the filing date of an application referred to in sub-section (1A) shall be considered as the international filing date accorded under the "Patent Cooperation Treaty". The sections 22, 23 and 24 dealing with acceptance, advertisement and effect of acceptance of complete specification are omitted. The sections 24A, 24B, 24C, 24D, 24E and 24F of the Patents Act, 1970 dealing with mainly Exclusive Marketing Rights are omitted indicating that a provision being made during the transition period. A new section 92 A, was introduced for grant of compulsory license for manufacture or export to any country, which has insufficient, or no manufacturing facility provided an application is made by the convention country.

REPORT:

This was the third invited Lecture in the Online Lecture series which has been continuing over the virtual platform owing to the inability of organizing them in the College Campus due to closure of institutions for the worldwide Pandemic. Prof. Sarani Ghosal Mondal is a veteran in the field of Romantic Poetry constructed by lesser known Poets of the Romantic Age. More than 50 participants had joined this lecture. The students and the teachers were deeply influenced by the poets chosen by her to develop a comparative analysis between them. The speaker talked about a lesser known poet named Felicia Hemans and compared her works with that of other Romantic poets like Shelley and Keats. The speaker talked about poems like 'Dirge', 'Casabianca' and 'The Stately Homes of England'. She compared them with a few poems from Shelley and Keats. The elements of female identity, sensitivity, melancholy, cheerfulness etc as could be found in her poems became the topic of comparison with other poems by Keats and Shelley. It was more of a celebration of the feminine voice in the poems of Hemans for Prof. Mondal, that became the central argument in her lecture.

The participants joined from all over the virtual platform as the lecture was made open to all. It was a remarkable experience for all of us as the speaker's unconventional deliberation on Romantic Poems ushered a lot of questions and observations from the participants.

REPORT:

Being a theatre expert, Prof. Sen's lecture, the fourth Lecture in this series was able to raise the standard of the event through his erudition and poignant deliberation on the topic. He chose to enlighten about the seasonal plays of Tagore like Sharadotsav and Phalguni which were mostly enacted on stage to celebrate the seasonal changes of Nature. The speaker engaged in a conversational session in which he addressed the issue of text and its performance on stage and mentioned how Tagore had made use of seasonal products from Nature for highlighting the stage decorations during the performance of Sharadotsav in Santiniketan. For Phalguni, the stage was also decorated with leaves and flowers to reveal the mood of the play through the decorations on stage. Prof. Sen also pointed out the non-conforming nature of these plays to the European standard of theatre in the Modernist period.

It was indeed a great experience to have such an eminent personality with us and the participants were deeply enriched by this Online lecture arranged by THLH Mahavidyalaya and team.

Organised by - English Dept in Collaboration with IQAC

Date - 31-08-2020

Speaker - Prof. Nicholas Birns, New York University.

REPORT:

This was an extremely prestigious event as the resource person was an international figure. Prof. Nicholas Birns had happily consented with our request in spite of his very busy schedule. This was the fifth Lecture in the series of Invited Online Lectures organized by the English Department in collaboration with the Internal Quality Assurance Cell of THLH Mahavidyalay. A large number of participants had gathered in the online Platform to attend to this lecture on Christie's Detective Fiction which highlighted the role of the unreliable narrator of the fiction. Prof. Birns created an ambience of learning through his close reading of the text along the lines of realizing the purpose of the unreliable narrator in a detective novel like The Murder of Roger Ackroyd. It focused on the character of Dr Sheppard and his role in the novel. The Principal and the IQAC coordinator were present in this session throughout to inspire the spirit of learning in the virtual mode during the worldwide pandemic.

More than 100 participants attended this lecture and it was a huge success. The program was made widely available over the virtual platform with the help of our technological assistance named Ashutosh Sarkar.

REPORT: This lecture was about the polyvalence of the Vampire 's existence in the broader narrative structure of Bram Stoker's gothic novel of the nineteenth century. Prof. Fitzsimmons tried to show how the novel was actually addressing the concerns of the Victorian age through the representation of an uncanny other in the form of a blood sucking human like character existing within the society with regular people. The multidimensional character of the Dracula was also highlighted in this lecture by the international resource person that we had with us. More than 50 participants had joined in the course.

It was indeed our privilege to have him with us through the virtual mode for our students as well as teachers. The event was a memorable one indeed as the participants were able to get to know the critical aspects of the above mentioned nineteenth century Gothic novel

REPORT: The speaker in this lecture highlighted one of the biggest concerns of contemporary India and the lecture became an interactive session regarding the various challenges faced by the technological discrimination in educational sectors which had started to get used to the virtual mode of teaching and learning during the Pandemic. Prof. Das feared that a sense of alienation would eventually destroy the egalitarianism required for the functioning of any educational institution in India.

It was a highly reflective session as the participants could voice out their concerns regarding the impact of the Pandemic on the educational scenario of India. The lecture ended with a set of questions and observations from the participants. It was indeed a much required session at that moment as the expert was able to focus on the major problems of the Pandemic

Date - 16-11-2020

Speaker - Dr. Saurav Dasthakur, Associate Professor, Eng Dept. Visva Bharati.

REPORT:

The speaker in this session enlightened participants on the very important issue of gender in Chinua Achebe's fiction Things Fall Apart, which being a post-colonial novel carries an extra significance in terms of the Indian culture as well. Dr. Dasthakur delivered one of the best lectures in this series as he was able to explore the plight of man and woman relationship as depicted in the text. The speaker was able to substantiate his arguments by referring to relevant areas from the text. It was a reflective session as the speaker was able to point towards the internal politics of representation of the gender bias inherent within the text in the course of the action of the novel by showing how the gender stereotypes had affected the entire village in which the Ibo Society had a strict system of male predominance to be maintained by the next generations as well. Dr Dasthakur highlighted how many of the practices of the tribal society in the novel created a separate world for their women in all aspects of life whether in home or in the outer world.

REPORT

This was the last invited lecture in the series of online lectures in the academic session of 2020- 2021 organized by the English Department in collaboration with the IQAC of Turku Hansda Lapsa Hemram Mahavidyalay. It was a significant session as the speaker talked about one of the major texts in Semester 1 of the Hons. curriculum prescribed by the University of Burdwan for those pursuing English Literature at their Undergraduate level. Prof. Bandyopadhyay focused on the element of allegory that can be read in the conduct of the characters in the Dice Game of the Mahabharata. He was referring to various dialogues and several other responses of the characters in the episode of the Dice Game in the epic. The students could identify with the speaker and his lecture as they already had a sound knowledge of the incidents taking place in this part of the epic.

The speaker was overwhelmed with the kind of response he received during the session and could not believe that so many young enthusiasts had joined to hear his deliberation on the epic of ancient India. The program ended with a formal vote of thanks to all from the Head of the English Department. A special gratitude was expressed Mr Ashutosh Sarkar who had been a constant support in organizing this lecture series.

Name of the Programme - Special Awareness Lecture on 'Gender Roles During the Pandemic'

Organised by - Gender Cell in Collaboration with IQAC

Date - 08-03-2021

Speaker - Dr Sewli Chatterjee, Assistant Professor in Mathematics, THLHM.

REPORT:

Owing to the emergency enclosures of the educational institutions all over India since March 2020, all the academic institutions have been functioning in the blended mode. Being unable to have much opportunity of meeting with friends or family, the pandemic has forced people to focus upon the importance of the changing dichotomy in gender roles to a great extent. The Gender Cell of THLH Mahavidyalay took this opportunity to organize an awareness program in collaboration with the IQAC to sensitize on the topic 'Gender roles during the Pandemic' on 8th March 2021. It was an intra College program and the invited faculty speaker for the program was Dr. Sewli Chatterjee of the Mathematics department of THLH Mahavidyalay. The program was attended by 29 participants over the Google meet platform.

The objective of the program was to have an interactive session about the kind of roles and responsibilities which had become important to be performed during the pandemic period particularly due to the phenomena of 'work from home' for both men and women.

The speaker being a working woman and a homemaker by herself was able to highlight the significant issues that demanded attention regarding the gender roles at particularly within the home. She focused on the necessity of sharing the workload at home for both working men and women in order to reduce the mental pressure during the lockdown phase.

The online program was an interactive session among the students and teachers and the outcome was indeed a satisfactory one as the young learners were sensitized about the concept of gender discrimination and how to grow up by keeping a progressive outlook at all situations. They were satisfied as certain issues like mental health and well being of people staying at home during the pandemic phase was also referred to by the speaker.

Report of the Programme:-

INTRODUCTION AND HISTORY OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS IN INDIA

Speaker: Dr Suman Mukherjee

Co-ordinator of IQAC, THLH Mahavidyalaya

26/04/2021

In commemoration of World IPR Day, the IPR Cell in collaboration with IQAC organized a Online Special Lecture on Intellectual Property Rights on 26/04/2021 at 6.30 p.m. It was conducted through Team Link Platform. The history of intellectual property rights in India can be traced back to the British colonial period when the first copyright and patent laws were introduced in the mid-19th century. However, these laws were primarily designed to serve the interests of British entrepreneurs and did not take into account the needs and aspirations of Indian inventors and creators.

After India gained independence in 1947, the government took several steps to promote indigenous innovation and creativity and protect the Intellectual Property Rights for indian citizens. In 1957, the Indian Patent Act was enacted, which established a system of patent registration and protection that was more accessible and affordable for Indian inventors and entrepreneurs.

In the 1960s and 1970s, the Indian government implemented a series of policies to promote self-reliance and reduce dependence on foreign technology and capital. These policies included the development of indigenous technologies, the creation of public research institutions, and the establishment of a legal framework that allowed for the compulsory licensing of patents in certain cases of national interest.

The Present Scenario of Intellectual Property Rights in India

In the 1980s and 1990s, India began to open up its economy and integrate with the global market, which led to a greater emphasis on the protection of Intellectual Property Rights as a means to attract foreign investment and technology. In 1994, India became a signatory to the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property (TRIPS) under the World Trade Organization (WTO), which required India to bring its intellectual property laws in line with international standards.

Since then, India has revised its intellectual property laws several times to comply with its obligations under TRIPS and other international agreements, while also trying to balance the interests of domestic inventors and consumers with those of foreign corporations. Some of the key reforms include the introduction of product patents for pharmaceuticals in 2005, the amendment of the Copyright Act in 2012, and the adoption of a National IPR Policy in 2016 to promote innovation, entrepreneurship, and access to knowledge.

The history of intellectual property rights in India has been shaped by a complex interplay of historical, economic, and political factors, as well as by the evolving global intellectual property regime. While India has made significant progress in protecting and promoting intellectual property rights over the years, there are still challenges and controversies surrounding issues such as patentability, copyright infringement, and access to essential medicines and technologies.

Name of the Programme - Special Awareness Lecture on 'Gender Based Violence'

Organised by - Gender Cell in Collaboration with IQAC

Date - 03-03-2020

Speaker - Mr. Debkrishna Sinha of History Dept and Mrs. Sanhita Samanta of Political Science, THLHM.

REPORT

An awareness program was organized by the Gender Cell of the College in collaboration with the IQAC of the College on 3rd March 2020 to sensitize the students about the concept of gender-based violence with Mr. Debkrishna Saha and Mrs Sanhita Samanta as the speakers on that day. The event was attended by 43 students and 5 teachers apart from the speakers and it was an extremely interesting session as a number of issues were brought up in the program to build awareness about how the modern society is facing the increasing amount of gender-based violence in their lives.

The primary objective of the program was to make the students understand the concept of violence which can take place in a variety of ways. Mrs Sanhita Samanta spoke about the various kinds of violence which can take place on women irrespective of any country or any particular society and can even go unnoticed by others. She gave examples of how violence against women gets manifested in a variety of ways like physical violence such as assault or slavery, emotional or psychological violence such as verbal abuse, sexual violence like rape and many other ways of inflicting pain and torture which also includes denial of basic facilities and imposition of confinement on women. Domestic and workplace violence was also an important topic raised in this discussion by the speaker.

Mr Debkrishna Saha elaborated on the other aspect of the concept of gender based violence in terms of violence which can take place against men. Although a topic of lesser interest, domestic violence against men is also not uncommon as it is violence or other physical abuse towards men in a domestic setting such as marriage or cohabitation. The speaker elaborated on the similar ways of violence against men which might lead to psychological distress in both male and females. There is however a different set of laws addressing the issue of GBV against men.

The outcome of the program was that the participants came to know about the different areas of concern that might be raised due to the practice of violence and severity upon both men and women in a primarily patriarchal society. They came to know about the various laws and measures to curb the growing nature of violence across the world. The topic of verbal and psychological abuse inflicted upon both genders was a new topic to grab the attention of the participants of the program.

Name of the Programme - Online Lecture Series on ' Towards a Greater Enlightenment: the Romantic Poets'

Organised by - English Dept in Collaboration with IQAC

Date - 16-06-2020

Speaker - Prof. Goutam Ghosal, Formar Professor in English, Viswa bharati

REPORT:

The session was a single talk event which commenced with a formal introduction of the speaker who is a retired Professor of the English Department of Visva Bharati, a Central University. Prof. Goutam Ghosal was able to ignite a rejuvenating interest in Romantic Poetry through his wonderful deliberation on Romantic Literature from an entirely new perspective which tried to situate the Romantic Poets in the broader scenario of the history of English Literature by claiming that Romantic Poets were actually trying to bring a different kind of Enlightenment through their poetry. Being an enthusiast in the philosophical beliefs of Sri Aurobindo, Prof. Ghosal insisted on the concept of the inner conscious being which could be reflected in poems by Wordsworth, Coleridge, Byron and Shelley. Prof. Ghosal emphasized on the different aspects of Enlightenment which can only happen with the broadening of the human conscience through experience and understanding of the subtle forces embedded in Nature and then proceeded on with his elaboration of the topic with reference to works of particular Romantic Poets.

The lecture was very well received by a number of 82 participants as they could gather a different kind of knowledge about the Romantic poems which were not a part of the curriculum. They were able to relate with the speaker's lucid way of delivering the issue as he had referred to some of the very interesting and popular poems by particular Romantic poets in order to keep the students interested throughout the Lecture. The session ended with a vote of thanks from one of the teachers of the Department and the students were informed about the tentative schedule of the next day's Lecture.

REPORT:

A one day Sensitization and awareness program on the topic of 'Menstrual Health and Hygiene' was organized by the Gender Cell of Turku Hansda Lapsa Hemram Mahavidyalay on 8th March 2019 in collaboration with the IQAC to focus on the health impact caused by lack of menstrual hygiene among young girls and women. A total number of 30 female students of the College had joined the program and 6 female teaching members were present in this program. Mrs. Oendri Chatteraj was the invited speaker of the event. It was conducted in the vernacular to bring clarity in the discussion.

The major objective of this program was to empower the participants with the right kind of knowledge about the issue. The program also handled the misconceptions about menstruation and health issues related with it.

It was able to make the young girls participate through an informative discussion in which all the present female faculty members also took part to share their experiences with the girls. The speaker emphasized on the necessity of maintaining proper hygiene and sanitation during this particular phase through the usage of medicated sanitary napkins and by following the proper disposal method. The speaker instructed the participants about the proper use of the sanitary napkins. They were also instructed to consult doctors if they had been experiencing any abnormalities during their menstrual phase at any stage.

The outcome of the program was quite interesting as after a certain amount of attention given to the topic, the girls began to speak up on their concerns about the issue. It seemed that there were many unaddressed issues regarding the different kind of menstrual problems in their lives and the speaker along with the other teaching staff tried to find answers for their concerns as much as possible. The sensitization and awareness program was indeed a successful event .

Report of the Programme:-

UNDERSTANDING INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS IN THE MUSIC INDUSTRY AND PROTECTION OF MUSIC UNDER IPR LAW

Speaker: Dr Reba Das

Assistant Professor, Department of Bengali, THLH Mahavidyalay

26/04/2019

In commemoration of World IPR Day, the IPR Cell in collaboration with IQAC organized a Special Lecture on Intellectual Property Rights on 26/04/2019 at 12.30 p.m. in College smart Room. 20 students along with member of the Cell presented there. Intellectual property rights and protection are usually associated with corporate and business environments; it also has an important role to play for creative in the entertainment industry.

Musicians, singers, and producers earn money through sales of the music or merchandise. Other than these, they can also make money through live performances and tours. The role of intellectual property rights comes in because it is easy to copy and sell music. It is not uncommon to find piracy in the entertainment industry, and even more so in the music industry.

In intellectual property rights, there are three things that are usually discussed the most: copyrights, trademarks, and patents. In the case of music, patents are not relevant. Copyrights and trademarks are of importance, especially copyrights, since they have a very major role to play for the artist's earning.

Copyright protection is extremely important for any musician. Copyright protection protects the sound and the written work of the musician for the lifetime of the owner of the copyright and then an additional sixty years after the owner's death. In the case of a group of owners, the sixty years are added after the passing of the last owner.

Copyright protection includes books, songs, poetry, sound and video recordings, and more. For music creative, this is extremely important. It serves as a proof of ownership and prevents producers and musicians from being robbed of their own work. Intellectual property rights awards artists' security against others copying their creation. The work cannot be copied unless the musician or the recording studio authorizes it. Distribution and broadcasting is also done with the permission of the composer and serves as a source of revenue. Authorization must be obtained to use the composition for works like movies.

Trademark protection is the protection of a design, a phrase, or even a word. Trademark protection can be very useful to protect logos and brand names. Musicians often use logos on their albums and their merchandise. This makes trademark protection necessary for them. In order to be able to use a logo or design as a trademark, it must be used enough times to be easily associated with the musician.

It is very important for musicians and producers to understand intellectual property in order to ensure that their work is protected. This is what enables musicians to earn money from their own works, either in the original form or in altered forms. Even though it may seem tedious to get into the legal aspects of the music industry, it is necessary for musicians to make informed decisions in order to ensure they are not taken advantage of.

Without doubt, one of the elements that contributes to any artist's success is the team that supports them. It is necessary for an artist to ensure that a music attorney is a member of this team. An experienced lawyer, kept well-informed about all dealings at all times can be a huge asset to an artist. They can ensure that all contracts are negotiated effectively and help build a well-informed team.

Our lawyers understand the media and entertainment sector from a technological and commercial perspective. We offer vigorous and knowledgeable IP procurement, leadership and enforcement strategies in addition to straightforward, commercially focused advice that is suited for a highly dynamic environment.
